

Georgia Association for Industrial-Organizational Psychology (GAIOP)

2022 Annual Report - Message from the President: John Morrison, Ph.D.

The association continued to provide high-quality professional development and networking opportunities in 2022. All four workshops – offered in February, March, July, and November of last year – were delivered virtually. The sessions were consistently well-attended and received positive survey ratings. We hope you likewise enjoyed wrapping up the year with a wonderful Social Event after the final workshop (complete with non-virtual fellowship, food, and beverages!).

The rest of the 2022 Board did a fantastic job during their final year, and hopefully you are as appreciative as I am for the service of MaryAnn Jerrum – VP of Membership, Dave Lux – VP of Programs, Andy Neiner, VP of Communication, and Seth Zimmer – Secretary-Treasurer. In addition, the year would not have gone nearly as well without the support of dedicated GAIOP committee members, including Chris Linke, Randy Lucius, Wanda Hayes, Amy Stewart, and Dan Whitenack among others.

From a financial standpoint, the association began and ended the year in good health. Total income recorded in 2022 was $5,996, with overall expenses coming in at $5,308 (with rounding). GAIOP ended 2022 with approximately $38,000 in reserves as well. High-level information regarding association income and expenses for the year can be found in the tables below and more details are available upon request.

As the now-former GAIOP President, I am signing off for the last time. From the very beginning, it has been an amazing ride given the challenges we faced, and I was fortunate to face them with great teammates. The association is without a doubt in good hands going forward, and we should all be excited about the fresh perspectives and unique skillsets brought to bear by the 2023-2024 GAIOP Board of Directors.

Thank you,

John Morrison
